TRINITY COLLEGE BULLETIN

EXTENSION NUMBER

September 1949

HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT

PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT

FOR the 19th year, Trinity College in 1949-50 will offer Hartford area residents an opportunity to further their education by evening study of college subjects. Although Trinity is primarily a liberal arts college for young men, the College has always shared its resources of plant and scholarship with the people of Hartford. This willingness to broaden its service in the community in 1930 prompted the first Trinity Extension courses.

The extension courses today offer particular opportunity to several groups,—school teachers, psychological technicians, business people, and men and women who wish to secure degree credit by full or part time study.

The extension classes are on the same standard and offer the same credit as corresponding courses in the regular college. Both graduate and undergraduate programs are available. They are all given on the campus by regular faculty members or by equally qualified part-time teachers.

The College is particularly proud of its record in offering freshman and sophomore college work to several hundred Hartford area men and women who were caught in the veteran-crowded "bulge" of higher education. This evening program, now entering its fourth year, was started after a 72 per cent expansion of the regular college which used to limit all daytime facilities. Of the young men in the late afternoon and evening programs, it was possible to admit to the regular college 35 men in 1947, 65 in 1948, and 25 in 1949. It should be clearly noted, however, that admission to the extension courses in no way carries an implication that the registrant will be able to transfer at a later date to the regular college. Neither has it been found possible to offer a full curriculum of junior or senior extension courses. Trinity will, however, transfer credit to any college or university to which extension students are admitted.

G. KEITH FUNSTON, President
